ECONOMETRIC SOCIETY SUMMER SCHOOL in DYNAMIC STRUCTURAL ECONOMETRICS (DSE)

Theme: Policy Evaluation and Heterogeneity Measurement

University of Wisconsin-Madison

August 4-9, 2024

Application deadline: May 1, 2024

We are pleased to announce the next event in the sequence of Econometric Society summer schools in Dynamic Structural Econometrics.

DSE summer school will equip early and mid-stage PhD students with tools and hands-on computational instruction in formulating, solving, and estimating dynamic structural econometric models, with particular focus on methods for incorporating observed and unobserved heterogeneity and using the models for policy evaluation in a variety of empirical applications in multiple fields such as development, labor, industrial organization, public economics, and macroeconomics. The course program will be available at the DSE website <http://dseconf.org> along with the details on the previous events.

The 2024 DSE summer school consist of four days of lectures and will run alongside the
